Brief Summary

Topic: Foundation of Management for Young Leaders

Programme: MBA

Date: 26th December 2025

Venue: Classroom 510

The MBA programme organized a guest lecture on "Foundation of Management for Young Leaders" as part of the academic curriculum to enhance students' understanding of core management principles and their practical application in the corporate world. The session aimed to provide students with industry insights, leadership perspectives, and real-world exposure that complement their theoretical classroom learning. The session commenced with a formal introduction of the guest speaker, followed by an interactive presentation covering the foundational aspects of management. The speaker shared valuable insights on the evolution of management thought, contemporary leadership challenges, and the competencies required for young managers in today's dynamic business environment. Real-life case studies and personal experiences were shared to illustrate how management principles are applied in solving organizational problems and driving business success. The lecture was structured to encourage active participation, with students engaging in discussions about leadership styles, decision-making frameworks, and ethical considerations in management. The speaker addressed various aspects including team management, conflict resolution, change management, and the importance of emotional intelligence in leadership roles. Students were encouraged to ask questions, share their perspectives, and seek clarification on complex management concepts.

Students gained comprehensive understanding of how theoretical management concepts translate into practical business applications. The guest speaker emphasized the importance of adaptability, continuous learning, and ethical leadership in modern organizations. Participants learned about the skills gap between academic preparation and industry requirements, and received guidance on how to develop themselves as future leaders. The session highlighted critical competencies such as strategic thinking, effective communication, team building, and problem-solving abilities that employers seek in young managers. Students appreciated the candid discussion about challenges faced by new managers and received practical advice on navigating their early career years. The activity successfully achieved its intended outcomes. Students demonstrated improved ability to connect management theories with practical business scenarios through the real-world examples and case studies discussed during the session. The interactive format provided valuable professional exposure and networking opportunities, with many students exchanging contact information with the guest speaker for future guidance and mentorship.

The guest lecture on "Foundation of Management for Young Leaders" proved to be an enriching and valuable learning experience for MBA students. The session effectively bridged the gap between classroom learning and industry reality, providing students with practical insights, professional exposure, and actionable guidance for their leadership development journey. Such industry-academia interactions are crucial in preparing management students for the challenges and opportunities that await them in their professional careers. The overwhelming positive response from students underscores the importance of incorporating more such guest lectures into the curriculum.
